

Greetings from

A fluffy orange and green puppet character with large white eyes and black pupils, wearing a white lab coat, stands in a chemistry laboratory. The background features a blackboard, shelves with various glassware and bottles, and a large blue flask on a stand. The scene is framed by a light blue circular border.

HAHN'S LAB

Hello friend!

Did you like the science experiment I did with my friend, Tyler? It showed me that science is so powerful, but not as powerful as the Holy Spirit! Tyler taught me that the Holy Spirit is the special helper God sent.

So, I read the story from the Bible about when God first sent the Holy Spirit to some people who believed in Jesus called the apostles. Can you imagine being there that day when people heard a sound from heaven like a strong wind blowing and then flames of fire floated over each person? Wow!

Because of the power of the Holy Spirit, the apostles were able to do much more than they could have ever imagined! What are some things you can imagine?

Well, I have to get my next science experiment ready. I'll talk to you later!

Hahn
